

Professor David Bishai
Director and Clinical Professor
School of Public Health
The University of Hong Kong

Biography

Professor David Bishai is a Clinical Professor in Public Health and Director of the School of Public Health, The University of Hong Kong. Prior to joining HKU, he had served as a Professor at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health for 27 years and served in Maryland Department of Health as a local health officer in 2021. He received his Bachelor of Arts from Harvard in Philosophy and Physics, his Masters in Public Health from the University of California at Los Angeles, his Medical Doctorate from the University of California at San Diego, and his Doctor of Philosophy from the Wharton Business School at the University of Pennsylvania.

A leading health economist, his research focuses on the performance and financing of global public health activities, primary healthcare, vaccines, and health disparities. He is the author of two books and more than 260 peer-reviewed scientific publications. His award-winning courses on systems thinking and health economics have reached over forty-thousand students. As President of International Health Economics Association, he helped to establish a global mentoring network for early career researchers. He maintains certification by both of the American Board of Internal Medicine and the American Board of Pediatrics.